G'wood wood mill to be sold at auction

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Saunders Brothers wood mill in Locke Mills village will be on the auction block at the end of the month.

A public sale of the mill and its associated personal property is scheduled for March 29, according to a legal notice published in last week's Bethel Citizen.

The notice says the current owner, SB Acquisitions LLC, is being foreclosed by the mortgage holder Bank of America NA, "for breach of conditions of said mortgage."

The mill's former owner, Gilbert Wood Products, of Westbrook, filed for bankruptcy in 1998, but retained formal ownership of the property until 2007, when it was sold to SB.

Greenwood Town Manager Kim Sparks said the mill and personal property are valued by the town at $1,364,030, and SB currently owes the town

W. Paris turns out, stands by Tri-Town

By MICHAEL DANIELS

By a two-to-one margin Saturday, West Paris voters bought some breathing space for Tri-Town Rescue Service.

The turnout at West Paris annual Town Meetings is generally around 60 people, Town Manager John White said, but nearly 100 turned up Saturday.

And the Tri-Town decision was "most definitely" the reason for that, White said.

The folks who did show up voted 65-32 to authorize town selectmen to enter into negotiations with Tri-Town. Greenwood, Sumner and Oxford County (which administers Milton Township) to attempt to shape a "quasi-municipal" inter-local entity to own and operate the financially beleaguered service.

Prior to the meeting, Tri-Town Director Norm St. Pierre had said a negative vote would be a death knell for the 29-year-old service.

But despite the vote, Tri-Town's continued existence is by no means assured.

"It's a work in progress," St. Pierre said Tuesday.

"I'm meeting with the three

Newry planners tilting at backyard windmill regs

By ALISON ALOISIO

If a Newry resident wishes to put up a backyard windmill, should the structure be held to the same visual- and sound-impact standards as its larger, commercial cousins?

The Planning Board debated that question last week, as part of its work in crafting a wind power ordinance.

Planners have been pondering the use of large setbacks from property lines to limit the visual impact of tall towers, particularly from the vantage points of nearby state and federal recreation lands, as well as from roadways.

They have also considered limitations on sound levels and light "flicker" (caused as the blades rotate with the sun shining through them).

Separate categories

To more severely limit large towers, while still protecting homeowners who might want to erect a small one, board chair Brooks Morton said he

SAD44 gets a bit of budget relief

By ALISON ALOISIO

Some restored state aid, coupled with updated financial projections, mean the budget hole SAD44 and its taxpayers must fill next year will likely be smaller than first estimated.

The original hole was $2 million deep, out of an approximate $9 million budget.

Last month Supt. Dave Murphy had proposed splitting the burden for making up that anticipated FY'11 budget gap. Taxpayers would shoulder a then-estimated $1 million, and the district would make a similar amount of cuts to staff and programs.

But with newfound state aid funds and reductions in other estimated costs, the taxpayer portion of the burden may now be reduced by about $216,000, while the district may be able to reduce its cuts by about $147,000.

In a presentation to the School Board Monday, Murphy stressed that the figures can still change, and the board will not make any budget decisions until later this month.

Where are the gains? Because the state expects to receive more in revenues than earlier projected, SAD44 should have $119,000 in lost state aid restored.

Other positive financial developments include:

The district's fixed-cost increases for staff health insurance will now likely be $160,000 less than projected;

A penalty of $35,000 assessed to SAD44 for not consolidating with another school system has been forgiven;

Carryover funds available from this year are expected to be $50,000 more than originally expected.

Murphy now proposes to put the $119,000 in state aid and half each of the insurance and penalty savings toward easing

New lecture series will honor Howe

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Bethel Historical Society has begun fundraising for a new, annual lecture in honor of Associate Director Stan Howe.

The effort was a surprise to Howe, who served as BHS curator and executive director for 35 years.

He recently became associate director of education and research, in order to devote more time to writing.

Randy Bennett, who succeeded Howe as executive director, said the society has set a goal to raise at least $10,000 to support the Stanley Russell Howe Lecture.

BHS has collected about $5,000 in gifts and pledges since the effort began in January.

An endowment will be established that will allow lectures by well-known presenters to be funded through interest earned, said Bennett.

"We will only likely get the speakers here on a fee basis," he said.

Lecture topics will be specific to western Maine and the School staff, parents offer their own suggestions for making do with less

By ALISON ALOISIO

The FY'11 and FY'12 school budgets are pro-posed to include significant staff cuts and, in the second year, the closing of the Woodstock and Andover elementary schools and the former Ethel Bisbee School, which serves as SAD44's central office.

Supt. Dave Murphy has repeatedly asked staff, parents and other interested parties to contact him with suggestions for dealing with the budget situation.

At Monday's School Board meeting, the SAD44 teachers' union, the Telstar Educators'

Association, distributed a flyer outlining alternative ideas for cutting the budget.

The TEA ideas, as well as others that were offered, were discussed at various points during the meeting.

"Below are some ideas of ways our district can make cuts, while protecting our kids," the flyer said.

A synopsis of the suggestions follows, with discussion by Murphy summarized in italics:

1) Close EBS in the first year, saving $25,000 sooner, and consider selling the building.

Waiting a year to close this facility could serve multiple purposes. It would give the District Exchange/Food Bank, also located in the building, some time to relocate. Currently the best choice for the central office might be office space in the Crescent Park School, but until the fate of AES and WES are finalized, that decision cannot easily be made, because that

'LIBERAL DIATRIBES,' INDEED

To the Editor:

I buy the Bethel Citizen basically for three reasons: to do the crossword puzzle, to drool over the over-priced real estate in the ads and to laugh at Sharon Bouchard's honest, forthright and entertaining column. Heck, sometimes I even read the news.

I disagree with Mr. Hausman's letter to the editor about Sharon Bouchard's so-called "liberal diatribes" and her statement about men and testosterone. Maybe he could sip some chamomile tea or whatever, take things down a notch and consider how "liberal" he sounded in his approach against Ms. (Did I say "Ms.") Bouchard. While he's certainly entitled to his own impressions and opinions, she didn't deserve to get slammed for anything that she wrote. Sharon uses self-effacing humor to point out things that many readers think that happen to only them. Those are marks of a true comic, right? In reality, she was only complimenting the "flaky" male gender while bemoaning her own self-perceived, female-derived shortcomings. The same take can be done on women and estrogen, that is, if you have the nerve. (Bah-dah-Boom!) She only meant that the differences between genders, though quirky at times, are complementary and can work together as a beautiful organism. She gets it. I get it. Does Mr. Hausman get it?

It's a myth that happiness will be attained by rejecting the good Lord's original purpose for us and by minimizing all our funny shortcomings that make us special, unique and even entertaining. Certainly, we shouldn't compromise solid, lasting values and there are always issues of unfair treatment that need to be addressed, but where do we get the notion that it's okay to get all hyper-sensitive and easily offended over nearly everything in the world? Why do we think that if we could just stop all this joking about our own individuality, then we'd all be happy? What, we should all be clones? What the heck happened to "diversity"? Never mind.

Clearly, it's not Sharon's intent to come across as a liberal male-basher. She might use a little "female-chauvinism" for laughs, maybe, but so what? That's just part of what makes her funny. We need to learn how to respectfully laugh at ourselves and our goofy differences and stop being such a nation of wah-wahs.

"Liberal diatribes," indeed! Hogwash, I say! Lighten up!

So "Ms." Bouchard, "The Way I See It," keep up the good work. This guy says, "You go, girl!"

White Mountain region. This focus is narrower than that of the society's current Hall Lecture series, which may range over northern New England for topics.

The Howe series may coincide with upcoming exhibitions or conferences, Bennett said, as well as take into account Howe's particular interests.

For example, the Civil War is one area of interest to Howe. The beginning of the sesquicentennial observance of that war is next year.

The BHS has a large amount of local information and material relating to the subject, Bennett said.

And there are other upcoming anniversaries to which lectures might be tied, Bennett said: the 2011 100th anniversary of the Weeks Act, which created national forests in the Eastern U.S. (and specifically the White Mountain National Forest); and the 2012 100th anniversary of the Mount Washington Auto Road.

Howe expressed his appreciation for the effort.

This was a very pleasant surprise for me, and I am very grateful to the Board of Trustees for creating the lecture fund in my honor. I am also very grateful to all those who have so generously supported the fund with their gifts," he said.

Anyone interested in supporting the fund may send donations to Bethel Historical Society, P.O. Box 12, Bethel 04217 and note that it is for the Howe Lecture Fund.

CLOSED SCHOOLS = LOWER QUALITY EDUCATION

To the Editor:

As you have probably heard the School Board is proposing to close the Andover and Woodstock elementary schools. The closing of the two schools will affect every elementary student in the district, since all of them will be squeezed into the Crescent Park School. As a parent, or a concerned citizen, you can help by calling your school board members and selectmen and telling them to keep the schools open.

Closing the schools will lower the quality of education, and life, for our children — bigger classes, more time spent on buses, more unfamiliar faces, less community. It will also leave us with fewer options for the future. Next time the student population increases we'll have to add on to our only elementary school, the Crescent Park School.

On top of this, Andover and Woodstock will lose a vital part of their communities. No one will die if the schools are closed, but every elementary student and their families in the district will feel the impact. In a time when many people feel a lack of connection to the community it seems especially sad to see one of the few things left that ties families together disappear.

The state will cut funding for our district by almost two million dollars. The school board is left with no great options, and they cannot be blamed for the state's lack of responsibility. But if we let them know that we're opposed to the school closings, maybe they'll listen more to us and less to the people who oppose tax hikes to cover the shortfall in funding.

The next school board meeting is at 7 p.m. on March 22 at the Telstar complex. Please come to show your support for our elementary students.

QUALITY EDUCATION A PRIORITY

To the Editor:

My name is Julie Davis, I am a resident of Woodstock and my son attends Telstar High School. I have served as one of the three School Board representatives for the town of Woodstock for the past 4½ years. The purpose of this is to announce my candidacy for re-election to the school board.

Our School Board and community are headed for many difficult decisions in the weeks, months and years ahead. Those decisions will have far-reaching and long-term consequences for our students and our taxpayers. Discussions must focus on the immediate needs of our local students, families and taxpayers. Old solutions will not work. This is not about making a few surgical cuts to high-profile activities like band and football, and turning out supporters to restore budgets. We must come together and address how we will continue to provide the best educational opportunity possible for our students without imposing crushing burdens on our local taxpayers.

The decisions we make as a community and a school board will involve difficult compromises. We must embrace change as we look to the future of our district. I have been deeply involved with these decisions and changes over the past 4½ years and I would like to see this through the next phase of challenges. I look forward to representing the town of Woodstock in bringing forward creative and innovative ideas, and keeping the quality of our children's education a priority.

Thank you.

COMMISSIONERS EMBARRASSINGLY UNDEMOCRATIC

To the Editor:

I am outraged to learn that two Oxford County Commissioners, Dave Duguay and Steve Merrill, acted unilaterally to change how the county selects its treasurer, switching it from election to appointment by their votes alone. No reason was given for the change, though Republicans appear to lack a candidate in the upcoming election.

This is not how representative government is supposed to work. There were no public hearings and no public dialogue. No other stakeholders were consulted. There was no consideration for putting the question to a referendum.

Obviously, Oxford County needs to return to democracy and we could start with a Charter Commission for the county. The third commissioner, Caldie Jackson, abstained from the vote, but gave no reason. Perhaps, he was embarrassed. I would be.

POND RECLAMATION UNFAIRLY PORTRAYED

To the Editor:

In a recent issue of your local paper a letter to the editor appeared in regards to the Proposed Reclamation at C-Pond, in C-Surplus, Oxford County. The editorial was titled, "Killing Wildlife with your tax money"

The writer's comments did not provide a fair or accurate portrayal of the history of this project and the entire editorial contained very few accurate facts. The public hearing will clarify each of the eleven shortcomings in the previous editorial; however, I would like to provide the following information.

The fisheries biologists have been very aggressive in their efforts to control and address the problem of invasive species in Maine waters statewide. This current proposal is a continuation of those efforts.

The fisheries biologist at the Regional Office in Strong are on the leading edge of the best methods and practices used to manage fisheries including the introduction of invasive species. They should be applauded for their efforts and thanked each time a fisherman catches a wild native fish in any Maine waters. This is what the sportsman of Maine are paying them for, let's allow them to do their job here in western Maine.

And I close with this excerpt from the great ponds act, in regard to access: "Under the peculiar, but settled law of Maine and Massachusetts, originating in the Colonial Ordinance of 1647-47, ponds of more than 10 acres are designated as Great Ponds."

"For Great Ponds lying in common though within the bounds of some town, it shall be free for any man to fish and fowl there, and he may pass and repass on foot through any mans property for that end."

We all should be thankful that this private road is not gated where it leaves the pavement on East B-Hill.

Submitted with respect and integrity,

Rick Mills

BETHEL GOP CAUSUS REPORT

To the Editor:

The Bethel Republican caucus was called to order on Feb. 21 at the Crescent Park School cafeteria by Town Chairman Arlan Jodrey. Sarah Tucker was elected as caucus secretary and Stan Howe was elected caucus chair. It was voted that Roberts Rules of Order would serve as a guide for any parliamentary procedure issues. Elected as delegates to the State Convention in Portland in May were Chris Lee, Harry Faulkner, Stan Howe, Jarrod Crockett, Becky Kendall, Dennis Doyon, Andy Whitney, Paige Crockett, Bettyann Hastings, Rick Whitney and Scott Cole. Elected as alternate delegates were Ellen Whitney, Ann Crockett, Arlan Jodrey, Eleanor Jodrey, Alice Faulkner, Dorothy Bartlett, Gordon Crockett, Esther Crockett, Drew Webster, Judy Webster and Tami James. Jarrod Crockett was selected to chair the delegation and to fill any vacancies that may develop among the Bethel delegates and alternates. Bettyann Hastings and Dorothy Bartlett were elected as delegates to the County Committee. Arlan Jodrey declined nomination for another term as chair. Dennis Doyon was elected to chair the Bethel Town Committee. Re-elected were Sarah Tucker as vice chair, Stan Howe as secretary and Becky Kendall as treasurer. The current bylaws were reaffirmed by vote of the caucus. Approved for ballot clerks were Muriel Butters, Pauline Davis, Esther Wilson, Alice Faulkner and Henry Messier.

The caucus approved a $125 advertisement in the State Convention program booklet. Following adjournment of the Bethel caucus, Republicans from Albany, Newry, and Upton held their caucuses.

Five candidates for governor or their representatives addressed the caucus. These included Steve Abbott, Bill Beardsley, Peter Mills, Les Otten, and Bruce Poliquin. U.S. House candidate Jason Levesque also spoke briefly. State Senate candidate Sawin Millett also was present and spoke about his race to win the seat being vacated by a Democratic incumbent.

$19,778 in taxes, for the period from Jan. 1, 2009 to June 30, 2010.

The mill is believed to have recently been employing 40 to 50 workers, the town manager said.

Chris Marshall, owner of the nearby Round Pond Store, said that if the mill is closed after the auction (as he has been told it will be), it would be a serious blow to the area economy.

"It's certainly not an encouraging sign for Spring," Marshall said.

Attempts to reach the spokesman for SB have been unsuccessful.

other towns we cover, trying to get their feelings, and trying to get our budgets passed at their Town Meeting," he said.

The quasi-municipal structure being envisioned for Tri-Town would provide several benefits, St. Pierre said recently.

For example, it would qualify the service for insurance coverage from the Maine Municipal Association, cutting its annual insurance costs (currently $30,000) by two thirds.

It would also allow the various fire and rescue services in the member towns to increase the level of cross-training among all their volunteers.

"It's what FEMA is trying to do now, and it makes sense," St. Pierre said.

It would also qualify Tri-Town for grant funding.

Currently, members taking courses to upgrade their skills must pay for the courses out of their own pocket.

If that cost could be covered by grant funding, volunteers have noted, they could more readily advance their skill levels.

Tri-Town volunteer Jim Owen is also the fire chief in Greenwood — which will vote at its own annual Town Meeting in May whether to continue with Tri-Town coverage.

Owen said the town is basically waiting to see what type of proposed organizational structure the various parties involved come up with for service.

"As for the Greenwood Fire Department," he said, "we are planning to send several members to an EMT course to upgrade our ability to assist Tri-Town in the future."

"We still have a rough road, but now, with the support of the towns and the employees, things will work out," Owen said.

Briefly

Kindergarten search underway

SAD44— SAD 44 is undertaking its annual search for prospective kindergarten students. Any child who will be five years of age on or before Oct. 15, 2010, is eligible to enter kindergarten for the 2010-2011 year. Anyone with a prospective kindergarten is asked to call the appropriate school: Andover School 392-4381; Crescent Park 824-2839; Woodstock 665-2228.

Career Week upcoming

BETHEL— During the week of March 22-26, approximately 73 Telstar juniors will be excused from school to participate in the annual Career Exploration program. The program enables students to contact, coordinate and job shadow or work with employers of the SAD44 school district, Oxford County and work sites throughout Maine, New England, and the rest of the country. Career exploration projects assess accomplishment of aspects of the Maine Learning Results. In the past many students have also found careers that interest them and influence their decisions about future courses, colleges, and training programs. In the next several weeks students will be contacting businesses or individuals to arrange their career exploration experiences. Anyone with ideas for a career project students could do or who has questions about the program, is asked to call the Guidance Office at 824-2136 ext. 311.

WES pupil qualifies for geog. bee

WOODSTOCK—Marcus Wentworth, a fifth-grader at the Woodstock Elementary School, has been named as a semifinalist eligible to compete in the 2010 Maine Geographic Bee, sponsored by Google and Plum Creek. Bees were held in schools with fourth- through eighth-grade students throughout the state to determine each school's winner. School-level winners then took a qualifying test, which they submitted to the National Geographic Society. In each of the 50 states, the NGS invited students with the top 100 scores to compete at the state level. The Maine Bee will take place at the University of Southern Maine April 9. The winner will represent Maine in the National finals May 25-26. Marcus is the son of Marc and Sherry Wentworth.

Snowmobilers injured

RANGELEY— The Maine Warden Service is investigating three snowmobile accidents that left four people seriously injured. Two Massachusetts men were hospitalized with non-life threatening injuries after two accidents at 2:30 a.m. Sunday in Rangeley. Wardens say one of the men's machines struck a parked camper trailer, and the other crashed into a clump of trees when he swerved to avoid the first machine. In Greenville, a Lyman man suffered a serious leg injury Saturday afternoon when his snowmobile hit a 2-foot-high patch of packed ice on Moosehead Lake, launched into the air and flipped over. And in Bradstreet Township near Jackman, a Winslow man suffered a broken arm after crashing into another snowmobiler at 11 a.m. Sunday.

LIFE IS MEASURED IN YEARS BUT ON MERRILL HILL LIFE IS MEASURED IN MOMENTS

In everyone's life there are five or six, possibly ten moments of perfection: For this young racer it might be a Chondola ride and a day of skiing with his Dad and Brother. For you it might be: That special day with Granddad, snowmen and sleds. A family feast of food, games and stories with extended family after a ski day. Seeing a triple rainbow over the mountains. A new puppy. That first real kiss. Isn't it fun to remember your special moments? Get back to the simple things in a place that is simply spectacular.

Our best memories aren't made on a cell phone, sitting in traffic or tackling that endless to do list. Our best memories are made in the moments we slow down and do the things we love, with the people we love. It's all a matter of finding time.

SCHOOL BOARD AND RESIDENTS
WRESTLE WITH BUDGET ISSUES

Another SAD44 School Board meeting brought a large turnout of parents and staff to hear financial-information updates from Supt. Dave Murphy. Here, audience members have an opportunity to express their views at the beginning of Monday's meeting. The board will consider the budget in detail at its next meeting on March 22.

Budget

the taxpayer burden, by $216,000.

The other half of the latter two funds, plus the extra $50,000 in carryover, would ease the district's cuts by $147,000.

Put all gains to schools?

Bethel Director Lynn Arizzi asked if the newfound funds could all be put toward saving staff and programs, instead of using part of it to reduce the tax burden.

Murphy said that option would be the board's decision at its March 22 meeting, when directors make final budget adjustments.

They will also discuss setting facility closings for FY'12.

Andover Director Keith

Smith asked why the decision to close schools couldn't be postponed.

Murphy said a long-term budget blueprint would be better for planning, and that sufficient notice is needed for Andover and Woodstock to consider whether they want to pay themselves the money SAD44 would save in the school closures and referendums open.

But, he said, if more money were to become available in the next year, there would still be time to change the decision.

A public hearing on the FY'11 budget is expected to be scheduled in late May, with district meeting and referendum votes in early June.

Options

space might be needed for students. If that is the case, the central office would then shift to the Telstar complex. An obvious goal is to go through the moving process just once. The Ethel Bisbee School cannot be sold outright immediately because it belonged originally to Bethel, which may have an interest in it if the district decides to turn it back to the town. The district may also wish to keep the property for future use. A lengthy process could be involved in determining the building's future, so any savings beyond the $25,000 would probably not be realized in the short term.

2) Eliminate a principal from the Telstar complex. There is currently one each for the high school and middle school. At times in the past, one principal has overseen both. Savings: $100,000. The board discussed that issue years ago and determined that it was in the best interest of middle school students to have their own principal and their own identity. Since that decision was made, educational gains have been noted with a middle school principal in place. Other administrative cuts have been made in the district in recent years.

3) Eliminate Adult Education, limiting the impact on children.

Adult education literacy programs must be offered in some form by the district. Eliminating adult ed would require contracting for some of those services with a nearby district, likely at a significant cost. SAD44's adult ed community programs are all self-sustaining. The current budget proposal does include a reduction of $35,000 to the existing adult ed budget, approximately one third of the local cost of the program.

4) Provide teacher retirement incentives. At least five teachers are at retirement age. All are at the "top of the scale," meaning they have attained the highest level of pay.

Currently, only teachers of Maine State Retirement System retirement age can be considered for any early retirement offer provided by school districts. SAD44 is currently looking into this, and the TEA is part of the discussion.

5) Reallocate $500,000 of approximately $1.2 million set aside for building improvements, from the Capital Improvement fund.

Over the past few years, voters have approved money for this fund. Last summer, they rejected an addition to the Telstar complex, citing improvements to existing buildings as a greater priority. The board hopes to pursue matching grant funds for the capital improvement money. The board's Finance Committee unanimously rejected redirecting the money to other budget purposes. Voter approval would be needed to remove funds from this account.

Audience views

Several dozen parents, staff and other residents attended Monday's meeting, and some offered comments on the potential closure of schools.

Diana Nadeau of Andover, who said she had worked at AES for 10 years, said she was grateful that her son had been able to complete his elementary education there.

The school, she said, "is the heart of the town."

Jesper Kruse of Greenwood felt the same way about WES.

"If we close the Woodstock school, that's basically the last institution left in that area," he said.

Fred Johnson of Woodstock said his children are out of WES, and he does not earn a lot of money, "but I hate to see it closed. Raise my taxes."

He asked directors to keep their minds open to other possibilities for saving the schools.

Brad Wight of Newry provided another perspective.

He said that as a child he had attended a two-room school in Newry. The school closed in the 1970s, and children were bussed to CPS in Bethel.

Wight said that while Newry residents were unhappy with the closing at the time, "the kids merged very well" into the larger Bethel school.

As the meeting drew to a close, Murphy said that his office still welcomes suggestions on the budget.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

I have never thought of myself as a gambler. Oh, sure, I buy the occasional lottery ticket, but I know that the chances of getting struck by lightning are better than my numbers coming in. I don't take it very seriously, but every now and then it's nice to play around with the fantasy of "what if?" I know that it would take unbelievable luck to win any lottery and I emphasize the word luck.

But occasional lottery tickets have been about the extent of my gambling. When I was a teenager I learned a very hard lesson about gambling. I used to baby-sit for a couple that frequently went to the horse races. They seemed to have a tremendous amount of luck betting on the ponies, so I didn't hesitate when they offered to bet what I would earn baby-sitting on the Daily Double.

When they told me I could end up with as much as $100 in my pocket, I was ecstatic. I spent a good portion of that evening thinking about all the great stuff I was going to buy with that windfall. Records, clothes, lipgloss, more records. A hundred bucks to a 14 year-old kid in 1962 was a small fortune.

Well, as luck would have it and I emphasize the word luck, my horse didn't come in. Not only was I not $100 richer, I didn't even have my baby-sitting earnings. I spent the evening with a couple of kids that had me jumping through hoops all night and walked away empty handed for my efforts.

It was a hard lesson to learn, but I made a vow to myself right then and there that I would never gamble a penny of my hard-earned money ever again. And other than the occasional lottery ticket and a few raffle chances when I consider that the cause justifies the expense, I have been pretty true to my vow.

That is until I got hooked on scratch tickets. It started out innocent enough; I bought a lottery ticket and thought "what the heck," might as well throw in a couple of the $1 scratch tickets too. If both tickets had been losers that probably would have been the end of it, but as luck would have it, and I emphasize the word luck, both tickets were winners. I had a $2 winner and a $10 winner. That was a great return; for a $2 purchase I made $10.

I guess I really should emphasize the word luck.

I'm proud to say that at that time I kept the $10 and turned the $2 winner in for two more tickets. And, as luck would have it again, and I emphasize the word luck, though one ticket was a loser, the other was a $5 winner. Now I was up $15 on my original $2 purchase. I like this, the rate of return was certainly better than my 401K.

A smarter person probably would have kept the $5 or in the very least bought one or two tickets and kept the change, but I wasn't that smart. I turned the $5 winner in for five tickets which were all losers. At this point I was hooked and rather than cut my losses I continued to buy scratch tickets whenever I felt I had a couple of dollars I could spare. I probably bought more than I should have and I'm sure I lost more than I won, but I kept it under control. After all, I'm not a gambler.

That is until I discovered the crossword scratch ticket. I enjoy doing crossword puzzles and, as I found out, I liked doing the scratch tickets; so these tickets seemed to be a great combination. Except these tickets cost $3 rather than $1 so each loser is triple what my losses used to be.

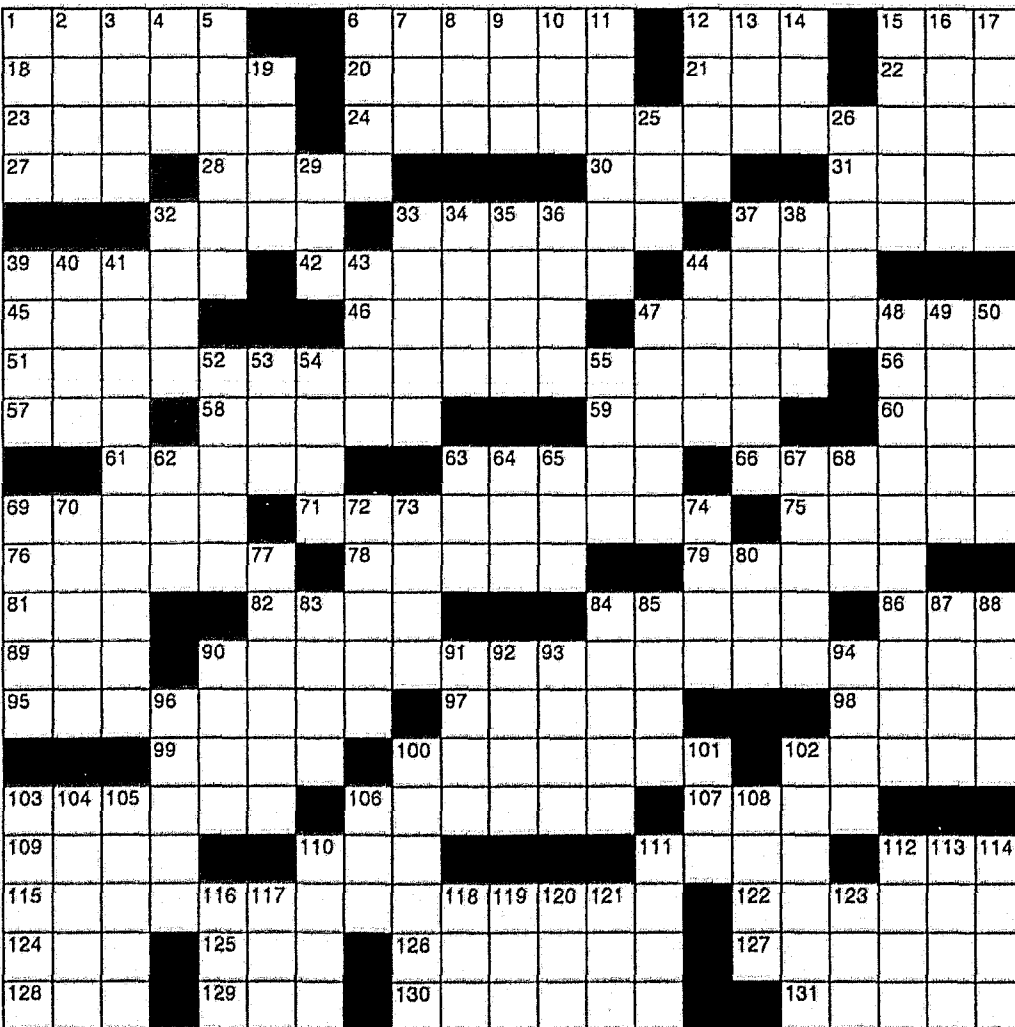

I found myself becoming very serious about these darn tickets. A win was owed to me, a loss was becoming personal. I even had favorite coins to do the scratching with. As a rule, I am no more a superstitious person than I am a gambler, but I was sure certain coins brought me more winners. I found quarters, especially the state quarters were luckier than pennies, dimes or nickels, and I emphasize the word luckier.

I suppose I have to admit that in spite of lost baby-sitting money from many years ago, I have become a gambler. I know I'm not alone in my scratch ticket addiction because I see people scratching everywhere I go. Some people can't even wait to get out of the store, they scratch right there so they can immediately turn any winners in for more scratch tickets.

I prefer to take the tickets home where I have my stash of lucky quarters, and I emphasize the word lucky. I like the privacy of my kitchen to do my scratching. I guess that not only have I become a gambler, but I'm a closet gambler to boot.

I really have to get a handle on this addiction and stop buying those darn scratch tickets. I hate to though because the way I see it, sooner or later my luck is bound to change and I'll hit it really big. I guess I really should emphasize the word luck.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Tuesday, March 9

At 4:13 p.m. Officer George Gould responded to a residence for a report of a family dispute. Arrangements were made for one subject to relocate.

At 5:48 p.m. Officer George Gould responded to the Flat Road for a report of young children playing near a brook. An adult was contacted.

Monday, March 8

At 2:28 p.m. Officer George Gould responded to Route 2 for a report of a damaged vehicle. The complainant said a passing pickup truck had made a turn and that rock flew from the truck bed and stuck the hood and windshield of his pickup, causing chips to the paint, a small dent to the hood and a chip in the windshield. An inspection indicated the chips on the hood already had rust in them. The driver of the first truck said he had spoken with the complainant, but said he did not have any rocks in his truck bed and did not make the turn at a speed that would cause a problem.

Sunday, March 7

(Time not available) Officer Jason Goff responded to the Flat Road for a report of juveniles operating ATVs recklessly on the roadway. A subject was given a warning.

(Time not available) Officer Jason Goff responded to Mason Street for a report of a possible domestic disturbance. A verbal disagreement had taken place and one subject had left when the officer arrived.

Friday, March 5

At 4 p.m. Officer George Gould responded to Route 2 for a report of a vehicle making bad passes and traveling at an excessive rate of speed. The officer stopped the vehicle on Route 2. A state trooper also responded. The driver, Joshua Roggenthien, was arrested for OUI.

Wednesday, March 3

At 11:15 p.m. Officer Anthony Keach responded to Route 2 for a report of a loud party. Several subjects were warned for disorderly conduct. Most had already dispersed when the officer arrived.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log. It lists cases reported in the log of adults being arrested or issued a summons in the 10 days prior to the newspaper's publication, but does not include all reports of police activity, such as routine speeding tickets and other civil violations. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

Tips from the Bethel Police Department

1. If you dial 911 by mistake, don't hang up. Stay on the line and tell the dispatcher what happened.
2. So that responders can find you quickly in an emergency, make sure your house number is clearly visible from the road — on the house if it is near the road, or on a mailbox or post if the house sits more than 50 feet back.
3. Watch out for scam letters and phone calls. For example, a letter stating you have won money and need to pay a fee to claim the prize and release the money.

avored adopting different classifications of towers, according to the size and power generated, with standards tailored to each.

"We should make it easy for the individual to erect a small wind turbine for 10 kilowatts or less for home use," he said. "From what I'm hearing from people, they don't want to see the large wind towers. But they want to allow small ones."

A model wind ordinance created by the state as a guide for towns suggests the smallest tower classification as 80 feet and under.

Morton cited an example of an ordinance from another town that allows shorter towers to be closer to property lines.

But planner Pat Roma felt there should be a single classification, with any standards applied equally.

He noted that the board, in considering rules governing large towers, has set a priority of protecting the scenic view-cape along the road to Grafton Notch (Route 26).

But, he said, a residential windmill on a roadside property could mar the view at close range, just as a large ridge-line tower might negatively impact the long-distance scenery.

"If anyone in the Bear River Valley put up a windmill, it's going to be visible as I'm driving down the Bear River, so how can that be less offensive than other larger ones?" he asked.

Replied Morton, "If I had one in my field [in the Bear River Valley], it couldn't be seen from Sunday River. But if you had one on any one of the peaks, one of these large ones, you could see it from Gray. It's a matter of scale."

Impact on neighbors

Also a concern, said planner Susan Herlihy, is the visual and sound impact of a residential tower on neighbors.

"It seems to me you would need a certain size parcel to do it," she said.

Roma agreed that nearby neighbors should also be considered.

"It has to be managed in such a way that it's not offensive to the neighbors, or harmful," he said. "I don't want to say to my neighbor that he is not held accountable to achieve those sound levels, because he's trying to be a green guy. He's got to meet those same standards."

But Morton said he still felt separate categories and standards would best suit Newry.

A homeowner should be able to sell excess power back to the electric company, he said.

Morton said he would do further research to support his argument for different classifications, and present his findings at the next board meeting, on March 17.

A new Saturday Zumba class is being offered from 8 to 9 a.m. at the Casablanca. Zumba is a fun cardio workout, which is accompanied by motivating music. There are also classes on Monday and Wednesday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Patti Truman is the instructor and she can be reached at 824-8612 for more information.

A reminder that the program "Prostate Health: What We All Need To Know" will be Saturday, March 13, from 10 to 12 noon at the West Parish Congregational Church. Bob and Mary Beane of Standish, members of the Maine Coalition to Fight Prostate Cancer, will discuss prostate cancer awareness and early detection. The program is sponsored by the To Your Health Committee of the Western Mountains Senior College. Everyone is welcome. For more information, call Rosabelle Tift at 824-2053.

The American Cancer Society Daffodil Days are coming up on March 25 and 26. Volunteers will be selling bouquets of 10 daffodils for $10 at the Bethel Foodliner from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on both days. The money raised helps provide resources to cancer patients and their families. For more information, call Caroline Gould at 824-3226.

The goldfinches and purple finches are back! We hear the spring call of the chickadees and jays, as well as the hammering of the woodpeckers. The sap was running last week, although it has slowed down after a series of 40-plus degree days and warm nights. On Sunday Mike and our daughter, Martha, boiled down three pints of syrup.

We had a whirlwind overnight trip to Boston on Thursday last week. Mike had been invited to attend a Ducks Unlimited dinner with our son-in-law, Ken Griffin, Thursday evening. As it turned out, I ended up going also, and a good time was had by all. We had a nice visit with our daughter, Kate, and grandson, Robbie, to boot. The frosting on the cake is that the Downeaster gives seniors a 50 percent discount on tickets — not a bad deal.

I donned snowshoes last week for my morning walk in the forest. I followed tracks made by someone wearing long-tailed snowshoes which held him/her up very well on top of the snow. My shorter shoes sometimes had me sinking in here and there. But it was a pleasant walk, nonetheless. Since then, we've been able to walk atop the snow without benefit of snowshoes, so thick has the crust become.

The deer are definitely moving about. On Sunday morning I spotted four deer standing in the middle of the Grover Hill Road, just beyond Remingtons' house. I slowed down immediately, and they ambled on to the trees on the other side of the road. Still cautious, I proceeded slowly, and sure enough, there was one more standing in the trees to my left. I've been hit before by crossing deer, so I was glad to avoid an unhappy meeting with this one.

Grover Hill seems to be a busy place for the cervidae, because on Monday afternoon, I saw two more deer crossing, this time to the southwest of Reuters' house. My guess is that they have no need to yard up anymore and are just looking for "greener pastures."

Last weekend was the occasion of the NENSA J2 Eastern Cross-country ski Championship Races at Jackson, N.H. NENSA is New England Nordic Skiing Association; J2 is a category comprising 14- and 15-year-old skiers from New England, New York, Quebec, and even Idaho and Washington. Needless to say we attended one of the races because our granddaughter, Molly Siegel, was participating.

On Friday there was a skate race; on Saturday morning (which we attended) there was a classic ski race; Saturday afternoon saw a spring race; and Sunday morning was a mixed medley race, wherein two boys and two girls on each team alternated between skate skiing and classic skiing. Happily, the Maine team that Molly was part of came in second among about 50 teams. It was a beautiful weekend, and the Maine skiers (20 girls and 20 boys) all acquitted themselves well. There was one girl from Mont Ste. Anne, Quebec, however, who out-skied everyone!

For those of you who, like me, are fans of detective stories and mysteries, there is a newly published book at the Bethel Library, entitled "Talking About Detective Fiction," by P.D. James. Ms. James dissects the genre and reviews its history, going back to "The Moonstone," by Wilkie Collins, and proceeding to 20th and 21st century writers. If you like this kind of fiction and/or have any pretensions of writing some of your own, you will find this slim volume most interesting.

Right now it looks like an early spring, but we have been fooled before. Time will tell. Enjoy the sunshine and warmth while it's here, but don't be surprised if we get buried in white stuff one of these days. Be in touch: dhoeh@megalink.net; 836-3011.

Gilead

Spring is here! At least for a few days this week. Hugh and I went to Tim and Michele's last Sunday to see the grandchildren, William, Annie and Sidney. Michele and I sat out in the sun and watched the kids slide.

My brother, Steve McLain, reminded me that there are two birthdays coming up for the McLain family in March. Lise McLain has a birthday later this month and their son, Brad McLain, has a birthday on March 11.

Town Meeting

The town of Gilead's Annual Town Meeting will be held at the Town Hall on Saturday, March 27, at 7 p.m.

Gilead Historical Society

The GHS is working hard getting ready for projects that will begin this Spring. The first meeting of the year will be held at the Town Office at 1 p.m. on Saturday, March 27.

Hugh and I had a phone call recently from Howard and "Stevie" Reiche of Falmouth. They are doing great. Howard was checking on some of the projects that the GHS are working on.

We also heard from Bob and Judy Bishop of Yarmouth the other day. They were also looking into what progress had been made with these same projects.

Recreation Committee

The Recreation Committee attempted to hold a fun day out in the sunshine last Saturday. They were hoping to get a group together to build snowmen at the White Mountain National Forest Picnic Area. Alicia McLean showed up with her three children and when I arrived they had their snowman about half done. They had a great time, but it was too bad that others in town did not take advantage of the nice day.

Snowmobile Club

The local snowmobile club, Wild River Riders, is having an end-of-the-season BBQ/Bonfire. It will be held on Saturday, March 20, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 80 Bog Road in Gilead. For more information or directions call 836-2112.

Last Saturday the Heart Healthy program presented by Denise Whitley of the Maine Heart Association was attended by many women. Betty Smith and I participated to learn more about this important subject.

I am sure many are planning to attend this Saturday's program, March 13, on Prostrate Health which is being presented by Bob and Mary Beane from Standish.

This program will also be held at the Bethel Congregational Church from 10 to 12noon. Bob and Mary Beane are members of the Maine Coalition to fight Prostrate Cancer. Early detection and awareness is very important. They will discuss and share their own personal journey and encourage men and women to attend this very important topic. This program is also presented by To Your Health of the Western Mountains Senior College. Admission is free and refreshments will be available. Please call Rosabelle Tift at 824-2053 if you have any questions.

The Bear River Trading Post will have fishing gear for the regular ice fishing, which begins April 1. Raw milk from Phil Bailey of Andover is available. The chickens seem to like this warm weather and have been producing very well. It is still not too late for warm-weather gear for adults, children and teenagers. Coffee, snack food, chili and Maine Italian sandwiches are on hand for your enjoyment. The Post was very busy this weekend with folks checking the snowmobile trails and stopping in for snacks. This past weekend the state ice-fishing contest was cancelled due to the ice being unsafe. Regular fishing begins April 1. Give them a call at 824-2327 if you have questions.

Andover

by Melinda Averill

Hello Andover friends. Next Saturday is the big day — Andover's annual Town Meeting. Hopefully we don't get a big snowstorm so people can get out that morning.

I attended the selectmen's meeting last Tuesday evening and the three school board members were there with an update on the superintendent's proposal for the district for the next few years. Thank-you to our representatives, Sid Pew, Tim Akers and Keith Smith, for keeping us abreast of things.

As in past years, Andover Service Circle (ASC) will delight those with a good appetite at the Andover Town Meeting, on March 20, 2010, by providing lunch during break on the first floor of Town Hall. For a suggested $5 donation everyone will be able to eat homemade soup, chilies, chowders, stews, rolls, muffins and desserts. All the collected money will be put to good use by ASC for the benefit of Andover residents through charitable giving.

Congratulations to the following Andover students who made the honor roll for the second quarter at Telstar High/Middle school: 6th grade, Lisa Gammon; 7th grade, Maureen Glover, Katherine Merrill; 9th grade, Gabrielle Conrad, JennaLee Putnam; 10th grade, Adam Mahar; 11th grade, Elek Pew.

Linda Dyer, organist at the First Congregational Church, has recorded a CD of her favorite piano music — some gospel, some hymns, and some of her personal favorites. The CD, "Sweet Melodies," has been recorded at Baked Beans Recording Studio in Harrison, Maine (they have a great website www.bakedbeansrecordingstudio.com). The albums will be $15 each, with a release date of April 1. If interested in purchasing one you may contact Sharon Hutchins (for those of you who know and love Linda, you will not be disappointed!).

Upton

by Laurie Brown

POSTPONED: The Murder Mystery Supper scheduled for March 13.

Circumstances such as illnesses, jobs, and busyness of life itself has prevented Ladies Aid members from completing the extensive preparations necessary for the event. A new date has not been set yet.

On Feb. 10, the Bull Moose Restaurant and Lounge in Cambridge, N.H., sponsored an appreciation night for "Groomer Charlie." The event was well attended and enjoyed by folks who gathered to thank Charlie Felt for his hard work to keep the snowmobile trails professionally groomed. Charlie Felt, of Barnes Road, volunteers his time and equipment for everyone who shares his love of snowmobiling to enjoy. The turnout at the Bull Moose is proof positive that many, many people appreciate him and his dedication to the trails.

Bob Brown is a candidate for the office of selectman. Having previously held that office, Bob is aware of (and willing to provide) the time required to be proficient in that position which is far more extensive than monthly meetings. He will bring to the position previous knowledge and experience of owning and maintaining equipment and roads, classes in home inspections, and extensive carpentry skills. Bob has completed the first of three assessing programs offered by the state and is enrolled in the second class which begins March 13. As a member of the Planning Board, Bob is familiar with dealing with the MMA and proficient at getting any questions they have answered. Bob was a selectman in Upton during the early stages of the present landfill. Together, all of his previous knowledge and experiences will enable him to help make sound judgments and decisions that are in Upton's best interest. Bob will appreciate your vote for selectman at the annual Town Meeting on March 25. Please feel free to contact him at 533-2111.

Michelle Bouchard, who is well qualified, has been working with Jim Rector at the Town Office learning the responsibilities and procedures required as town clerk. Michelle is a candidate for the office of town clerk and would appreciate your vote at the Town Meeting.

If you are a candidate for any town office and would like me to include your "campaign" message in this column, contact me by calling 533-2111 or e-mailing me at lauriebrown400@gmail.com.

The Upton Historical Association will hold its next meeting at 11:30 a.m. on March 21 at the Ladies Aid Building.

When you are told and/or requested to "stop and think" — about anything — is the speaker insinuating that you are incapable of thinking unless you are immobile? If that were true of everyone, either there would be very little accomplished or there would be very little thinking. Either way, it doesn't sound like an efficient way to proceed.

Have a wonderful week thinking and working simultaneously. Selah

East Bethel

by Wally Ritz

I think everyone will agree that these last few days have been absolutely beautiful.

Last weekend Eric Hastings and his son, Cam, came from Reading, Mass., to visit his parents, Sonny and Bettyann Hastings. Eric and Cam also took the time for some skiing at Mt. Abram and said that it was the best spring skiing ever.

On Sunday evening my daughter, Katy, her sons, Ben and Boden, and myself had a spur-of-the-moment sleeper/movie night at my house. First we watched "Where The Wild Things Are" and am sure just about everyone knows this wonderful book. Afterward the adults watched "2012." I would love to hear feedback from those of you who watched one or both movies also.

It is with immense sadness to have to let you know that James (Jim) Lowe passed away on March 7. He had so many talents, skills, and accomplishments; he was the Master of our local Alder River Grange and we all loved his cooking, sense of humor, and "tell it how it is." He will be missed by so many whose lives he touched. All our love and sympathy to his family and friends from the whole neighborhood. There will be a Memorial Service this Sunday, March 14, at 2 p.m. at the West Bethel Union Church.

So, ending this time on a somber note, call me 824-3220 or e-mail han@megalink.net.

East Andover

by Joan Stinson-Carney

Just to remind you again, there will be a Spaghetti Supper on Saturday, March 13, to benefit the Andover Food Pantry. It will be held at the Andover Congregational Church's CE Building and starts at 5:30 p.m. Donations will be accepted. Come early and leave full. Have you heard the latest? There is now available for your enjoyment chocolate Cheerios. Now I can have chocolate for breakfast, lunch and dinner and not feel guilty about breakfast.

Congratulations to Amy Farrington. She made the dean's list at U. of Maine, Orono, and to East Andover resident Gaby Conrad, a freshman at Telstar, who was chosen Freshman of the Month.

Happy Anniversary wishes to East Andover residents Marge and Earle Towne, who will celebrate on the 13th. Happy Birthday to Bruce Simmons who will celebrate on St. Paddy's Day.

I guess I will have to wait until June to find out about becoming a trustee at the library; the vote was postponed until then.

Just finished reading the latest and probably last book by Robert B. Parker. Wasn't my favorite, but better than nothing. To tell you the truth I can't even remember the title of it, but it's available at the library.

The East Andover Community Club met on Monday, March 8. It was hosted by Marge Stinson and Donna Gagne. Sorry was played, and a really good dessert was enjoyed.

Did you know that St. Patrick wasn't Irish? He was born in England and was kidnapped and taken to Ireland where he became a shepherd. He later escaped to France and became a priest. He then returned to Ireland, converted people to the "True Church" and scared all the snakes out of Ireland. It is considered bad luck to wear green on March 17 in Ireland.

Yes, I do know a lot of incredibly unnecessary things, but I'm always glad to share them with others especially when I have nothing newsworthy to write about.

See 'ya.

Hanover

by Clem Worcester

The Hanover Planning Board met Tuesday, March 3, for their monthly meeting. They discussed upgrade options with a potential property owner at Howard Pond within the Shoreland Zone. The Board discussed at length possible options to develop a wind power ordinance. Ultimately they decided much more research was needed and that it might be desirable to visit an active wind farm.

Bob Brown's surgery last week at Central Maine Medical Center was successful. He is now recuperating and undergoing rehabilitation at Ledgeview Living Center at West Paris. Bob's dog, Sam, was found to be too ill to recover.

Two little girls, both two years old, had the greatest birthday party. Shawnee and Makala Worcester had their birthday on Feb. 24, but the party was last Saturday at Sam's of Rumford. Parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins and friends attended. The huge pile of gifts was so overwhelming the little ladies couldn't get them all opened. The twins are the children of Brian and Sara Worcester and sisters of Kay-lynn Worcester.

This is an in-between time of year, not winter and not spring. At least the sap runs well.

When in doubt about what to do there is no harm in doing nothing.

Greenwood City

by Wayne Hakala

It's been an absolutely beautiful day. Bruce had extra sap and brought it up early. After that it was to the Transfer Station with the Legion recycling and trash. Had to stir it up a bit with the fella's.

I started the fire to boil down the sap and received a call that brother-in-law and his wife were headed our way with lunch. So it was feed the fire and feed the face. Wicked good visit. We solved a lot of Legion problems. Figure I took ten gallons of water out of the sap. I will have to start again tomorrow afternoon, as we have a project to do at the Legion.

Just a small hint that everyone needs to attend the Special Bingo at Post 68 that will benefit the Woodstock Veterans Memorial. We need to help raise the money necessary for the expansion of the monument. Many of the names to be added are all veterans and many a member of Post 68. Like I said, just a small hint!

The 18th of March is the Post and Unit 68 Birthday Dinner. Dinner will be at 6 p.m. I'm told that we will have a ham dinner. A number of guests will be present and giving their thoughts and wisdom.

Al Curtis, Little Al or Jr. has started chemo and says it is fun, NOT! Taking it one day at a time and is always waving as he goes past the house.

Way to go neighbor! I see he is on Facebook and chatting often. Good way to catch up with him.

There was a loss to Greenwood today with the passing of James Lowe.

At least Jim is not in pain now and I know he is residing in a good place. Jim and I spent a number of evenings counting ballots at the Town Office.

We always had a good time and I expect that some people would think we were nuts. Could be true, but we sure had a good time. I shall miss Jim. Our prayers and thoughts go to his mother, Mona Grover, sister Jane Ryerson and family.

Wednesday night was a complete disaster. John was playing Bingo again and did not win.

We got to thinking about the terrible state of luck he was having. Think if we get the Grand Trunk to never run passenger service through here again and maybe replace it with first-class excursion service, John's luck just might change.

But I expect that the First Class service could detract John's thoughts of Bingo. John, my fine feathered friend, you have to just pick the right numbered papers. Or so I am told.

West Paris

by Joyce Lamb

It is so good to be home after an enjoyable two months on the West Coast. The 50-degree weather followed me across the country. No snow there when I left. No more snow here to cover the dirty roadsides. The lawns around the trees are bare. It is just the beginning of March so there will probably be several inches more off and on to cleanse the earth. There could even be a blizzard to bury us before spring.

The plane ride home was as erratic as when we went out, for at the Oregon airport there was an unscheduled hour delay. Arriving in Newark the plane north was long gone. Instead of getting to Maine at 2:30 it was nearly 10:30. Marta Clement had been waiting for several hours. My luggage had been shipped on the plane I missed so it was locked up at Portland airport. We all had a battle to get someone in to unlock the door to get our bags. Marta safely delivered me home at 1 a.m.

The car did not start, for the battery was dead. My mechanic came the next day and charged it up. As my daughter had shut the water off when I left I tried to turn it on but could not turn the old, rusty shutoff. No car, no water. Dave Walton brought Muffin home, and he had the strength to turn it back on. After getting water from the faucet of the new hot water heater, I switched it on at the box and soon all was operating well.

"Love and Death," the last of the "Cathedral of the World" series, will be the Rev. Richard Beal's sermon topic for March 14. Church service at the West Paris Universalist Church is at 9 a.m. Jim Burke is organist. All are welcome. A coffee hour follows.

If anyone has news please call me. I do call several people each week but no one admits to having left home or done anything.

Muffin was glad to see me and is now on the desk overlooking my typing. I did not tell her I had been petting two pussycats for the last month.

Historical Society
The Historical Society regrets the passing of Norman Ferguson Jr. The society museum has letters from some politicians and biographies of many others. There are books on presidents and first ladies. They have books with genealogy. Soon they will be having meetings there again, and Saturdays next summer it will be open again.

Annela Burnham is saving clippings from the newspapers for notebooks in the museum. It is a chore but important and useful for the society. In the future people can use them as vital reference points. Think of how you can help the society. There is always something to do if you are willing. Curator Larry Billings hopes the society will have a bright future with your support and patronage. Attend meetings, participate, and give generously. It all helps.

Larry has given the society a coffee table book.

Waterford

by Rockie Graham

We have lucked out again and the weather has been beautiful and spring-like. The snow is almost gone in the lower areas. It is definitely mud season around our house. Tasha is loving being able to just lie in the dirt around where our house will be. She would lie in the sun in the snow, too, but this is better for her hip. We pamper her with Happy Hips so she can get her daily dose of glucosamine and chondroitin. It helps her walk a little more easily.

I attended the Waterford Town Meeting Saturday for the first half of the meeting, leaving at lunch break. That is all I could handle, physically due to the allergens in the fire station. It was a fairly active crowd. Most everything in the warrant passed and the crowd said goodbye to departing Selectman John Bell and hello to newly elected Selectmen Wyatt Andrews.

The most contentious item while I was there was the purchase of a skid steer for use at the Transfer Station. The vote was close enough that they had to count several times to make sure, but in the end, the crowd followed the selectmen's recommendation and voted no on the purchase. That saved the taxpayers $25,000 for now.

It means we may begin to get to a more positive balance in our town's checking account. Still, our taxes will go up; how much depends on the school budget which we won't know about till June or so. That makes it hard, but that is out of our control.

Thanks to all who took a beautiful Saturday off to attend the meeting.

St Patrick's Day will be here next Wednesday and already green cupcakes, green cookies, etc., are abundant in the stores. It is not as big a holiday as it was in Portland. That may just be a sign of the times.

On Saturday, the 27th, at the Waterford Library, there will be an Easter Egg Hunt for elementary students and younger. It begins at 3 p.m. and all young people are welcome.

I hope to get to Norway Library this month to check out my friend Mark's photography exhibit. It is on display until April.

This Sunday, the 14th, at 4 p.m. the Mountain Poets will meet at Fare Share Commons. This is our second Sunday reading. All are welcome. FMI call 739-9115.

That is all for this week. Enjoy the warmer days and cooler nights that bring that maple syrup in.

"Prostate Health: What We All Need to Know" will be presented by Bob and Mary Beane, Standish, Maine, members of the "Maine Coalition to Fight Prostate Cancer," on Saturday, March 13, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the Congregational Church, Church Street, Bethel.

The Beanes will discuss prostate cancer awareness, the importance of early detection, and will share their experience with this disease.

After spending 22 years as a city fireman in Portland, Maine, Bob Beane returned to college and achieved an Associate Degree in Nautical Science. He went on to work with the Maine State Fire Marshal's Office. Two years ago while undergoing a routine physical exam, a lump was discovered on his prostate, which was a very aggressive form of cancer. He has spent the past two years in treatment and credits his wife, Mary, with providing the invaluable support, which made all the difference during his battle with cancer. They will relate their personal journey, what they've learned, and what everyone

Maine Handicapped Skiing

We are tremendously proud and excited to invite you to join us in cheering on two former MHS participants, Luba Lowery and Carl Burnett, as they represent the United States in the 2010 Paralympic Games in Vancouver, BC beginning this weekend.

Both Carl and Luba grew up in Maine skied regularly at MHS, and Luba was an early member of the MHS adaptive race team that competes regionally and nationally.

In Luba's own words, "I wouldn't be competing in the Paralympics if it wasn't for all the wonderful volunteers and coaches at MHS who taught me how to ski and race! Thank you for making me the skier who I am today."

For those unfamiliar with MHS Racing, the team currently consists of 16 athletes who train with a dedicated group of volunteer coaches on Saturdays throughout the winter at Sunday River. The team travels throughout New England representing MHS and Sunday River in the Diana Golden Race Series, an annual circuit of Level 1 adaptive alpine races. Racers who excel at Level 1 can continue on to compete regionally and nationally, and many MHS racers have gone on to do so including those who now train with the US team.

MHS Racing is also home to the 2009 junior adaptive alpine national champion, Alex Tomaszewski. Alex and three other MHS racers, Lindsay Ball, Wesley Day and Griffin LaMarre, make up a third of the twelve-member US Paralympics' Alpine Junior Elite Team (AJET), the best and brightest up-and-coming adaptive racers nationwide.

Coverage of this year's Paralympics can be found online at the following links: www.paralympicsport.tv/ www.youtube.com/user/ParalympicSportTV

Please join us in watching and cheering for Luba and Carl, as well as all of our current MHS racers as they complete another hugely successful season.

White Mountain National Forest

During the Great Depression, President Roosevelt called on the Forest Service for help. Through the Civilian Conservation Corps, we engaged millions of unemployed citizens, helping to rebuild lives and provide a lasting service to the nation through fire control, reforestation, and early construction of roads, trails and facilities.

Last year, America faced the greatest economic downturn since the 1930s. Last month marked the one year anniversary of the signing of the Recovery Act. And the Forest Service is once again putting Americans back to work in the cause of conservation.

The Forest Service is ideally situated to help. Many of the communities most affected by the economic hard times are located near national forests. Our employees are woven into the community fabric; we know local needs, and we have the local capacity to provide training and employment. Projects chosen to use Recovery Act funds were specifically targeted to these economically distressed communities.

Millions of acres are in need of restoration work. Roads, bridges, buildings, and recreational facilities need repair. Through Job Corps Conservation Centers and agreements with youth conservation organizations, we have been providing training opportunities and paychecks for those young men and women entering the work force for the first time.

In New Hampshire, the Recovery Act is putting men and women to work.

Economic recovery funding is being used for a $100,000 trail maintenance project to address resource damage resulting from erosion and sedimentation at several sites on the White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire, including the popular Boulder Loop hiking trail.

High traffic volumes and heavy annual rainfall, coupled with steep trail design, create a recipe for major soil erosion, requiring hundreds of rock steps and dozens of drainage structures to stabilize heavily eroded banks.

A Forest Service trail crew began much needed trail work in 2006. In 2007, the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC) installed rock steps, water bars, and cribbing.

Recovery Act funding allowed AMC's work on the Boulder Loop Trail to continue in 2009.

A girl's experience playing for the boys' basketball team

NOTE: Because of low numbers, there was no girls' basketball team at Telstar High School this past season. Junior Emma Davis and freshman Jenna Putnam played on the boys' varsity and/or junior varsity teams. Here, Davis describes her experience on the boys' squad:

"About a week or two before the season started, we made a decision that there would be no girls team.

At first I was sad, but I realized that if we had a team that it would be a struggle to finish the season, and it would not be worth it to have such few players.

Throughout my middle and high school career I have always been playing basketball with the boys. If it was after school, or during lunch they were always the ones I played with because our school had such low numbers of girls that played. Once the season started they were really good about it.

They knew I had the potential and could play with them, so they were very supportive. As the season went on it only got better. We tried to grow as a team and not let having girls affect us.

I found that this might be one of the most valuable experiences I will ever have. Being on the boys' team really showed me how to cope with them and learn to play in a new way.

I had to adjust to a new ball, I had to adjust to the boys in general, and Jenna and I had to adjust to the comments that were made about us playing. Over all, I think that it was such a great experience and I am so deeply happy that I chose to play with them.

There will definitely be a girls' team next year. There are 11 freshmen coming up so far, and Mr. Mark Kenney and I have been eagerly trying to recruit some girls.

We know for sure that there are a few seniors and juniors that are going to play so I think overall we are going to be able to have two teams, instead of just one like last year.

I am excited for the season to try to teach the younger girls some skills and hopefully improve as a team. We are trying to get some gym time this summer. So hopefully we are ahead of the game for the season to come."

Coach's view

THS Varsity Coach Mark Thurlow praised the girls' effort.

"I didn't know what to expect," he said. "But they worked hard and mixed with the boys very well. They also had to face hostile crowds, and they handled that very well."

ACADEMY AWARDS, BETHEL STYLE

On Sunday the Rooster's Roadhouse in Bethel held a Charity Academy Awards Party. Guests came dressed as they might to attend the Academy Awards in Hollywood. Matty Leach served as master of ceremonies, Rick Allen provided the videography, and dinner music was provided by the local duo known as PB&J. Guests enjoyed a full course dinner, along with a dozen local "Bethel Academy Awards", Oscar Bingo, casting ballots for the real winners and viewing of the awards telecast on a 100-inch projection screen. The party was sold out, with more than 80 guests. Clockwise, from top left: Angie and Kate Carroll (winner of Best Comedic Performance); Robin Gilbert and Dave Berry; Stephanie Demello and Sheri Head (bartender at Rooster's); Rick Allen and Deb Wyman. Help cut costs, tackle home improvement projects

(ARA) - Once spring arrives and the daffodils begin to bloom, your old front door may look pretty drab. Still, many consumers may avoid home improvement projects because of a reluctance to spend money in a questionable economy.

"Today, homeowners are still focused on getting the most for their money," says Kathy Krafka Harkema, Pella Windows & Doors spokesperson. "Home improvement projects can add to the look and comfort of your home, and help reduce monthly utility bills to help make the most of your hard-earned money."

If your home is overdue for new windows, consider replacing them with Energy Star products that can lower your energy bills by as much as 20 to 30 percent.

Many Pella windows and doors have earned the Energy Star. For greater energy efficiency, choose double- or triple-pane options and look for windows with low U-values, which measure the ability to resist the transfer of heat.

Another way to help reduce energy bills is to keep window blinds and shades closed during hot months to conserve energy and open on sunny days during cold months to let in solar heat.

Opening the window to federal remodeling tax credits

(ARA) - As warm weather approaches and the tax credit for energy efficient replacement windows is in full swing, now is the perfect time to consider upgrading your home with new windows to help save on cooling costs in those hot summer months, and to also save on heating costs when winter rolls around again. The tax credit for energy efficient replacement windows and doors, originally introduced in 2009 as part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, is set to expire at the end of 2010, which makes this year the best time for homeowners to replace their windows and upgrade the look and feel of their home.

"New windows not only make the home look more beautiful, they can help save energy and money for the homeowners," says Chris Pickering, vice president, marketing, Ply Gem windows. "Homeowners can take advantage of the tax credit to increase the value of their home, plus shave some of the cost off of their monthly power bill."

Ply Gem, a leader in the building products industry, offers some tips and guidelines to help homeowners make the most of the energy efficient replacement window tax credit.

How much money can I get back with the windows tax credit? Homeowners can receive a tax credit worth 30 percent of the purchase price of qualifying energy efficient windows, up to a maximum of $1,500 if purchased and installed by Dec. 31, 2010.

To redeem the credit, be sure to save your invoice that shows a breakout of window and installation costs, the National Fenestration Rating Council (NFRC) labels from all windows and doors and the manufacturer's certificate.

Homeowners can receive a tax credit worth up to $1,500 for replacing their old windows with new, energy efficient windows by the end of the year.

How do I qualify for the tax credit?

The federal government established strict standards for windows to qualify for the tax credit. Replacement windows must have a glass package with a U-Factor rating (the rate at which heat is prevented from escaping) of .30 or lower. Qualifying windows must also possess a Solar Heat Gain Coefficient rating of .30 or lower. The lower the window's SHGC, the less solar heat it transmits.

A common indicator of a window's energy efficiency is the ENERGY STAR label, which as of 2010 includes more stringent guidelines. Homeowners who purchase windows with the ENERGY STAR label should still check with their contractor to ensure the windows they purchase meet the tax credit guidelines because the tax credit qualifications may vary from ENERGY STAR guidelines in certain locations.

Manufacturers like Ply Gem Windows offer glass packages to meet or exceed tax credit qualifications, as well as high-performance styles that meet or exceed ENERGY STAR requirements in all climate zones. For added energy efficiency, Ply Gem Windows products are also Green Approved by the National Association of Home Builders Research Center National Green Building Certification.

What are the benefits of remodeling my home with energy efficient windows?

Energy efficient windows that meet the tax qualifications offer more savings than a one-time federal tax credit. The Alliance to Save Energy says that sealing and insulating your house - including utilizing energy efficient windows - is a great first step to take when improving your home's energy efficiency. Proper sealing and insulation can reduce your heating and cooling bill by approximately 20 percent. An energy audit may be available through your local utility or state energy office to help gauge the amount of energy that you are currently using and determine what products would decrease your energy use.

Environmental and economic benefits are not the only upsides to remodeling a home - new windows in classic or contemporary designs can also enhance the aesthetic quality of the home and make a more comfortable living space.

Does the federal tax credit offer any other ways to save money?

The remodeling tax credit that expires at the end of the year offers homeowners several other options to improve their home and quality of life. Central air conditioners, heat pumps, furnaces, boilers and more are also ways to increase your home's energy retention capabilities.

To further save on energy costs, homeowners can use insulated siding, reduce the amount of water consumption and unplug appliances when not in use. For other ideas on how to increase the energy efficiency of your home, visit www.energysavers.gov. Be sure to ask your local dealer or contractor about the window products that meet the current tax credit requirements. To learn more, visit www.plygemwindows.com or www.recovery.gov.

EASY APPLIANCE MAINTENANCE TIPS

Provided by Agren Appliance & Television
150 Main Street, S. PARIS
743-0601

There are a number of routine maintenance procedures that anyone can perform to keep their appliances running at peak performance, and will add years to their life. Below are some key ones for the laundry area, specifically the energy-sapping dryer when its vent system gets clogged over time. More tips can be found at the Agren Appliance website at: www.agrenappliance.com.

IN THE LAUNDRY ROOM

Electric Dryers Cleaning the lint filter after each load/use is the most obvious routine procedure everyone should perform. But every six months or so, pulling the dryer away from the wall and checking for lint accumulation at the dryer's exhaust vent, and removing the lint from the outside wall's vent flap, will also make sure the moist air is getting to the outside and not choking the dryer's performance.

Before pulling the dryer away from the wall, unplug its cord from the electrical outlet. Then check to see how the vent is attached to the vent pipe leading to the outside—there may be an elbow fitting that will need to be reconnected the same way when the dryer is returned to its usual location.

Once the dryer is away from the wall, disconnect the vent attached to the back of the unit and clean out any accumulation of lint you find there. Remove any reachable accumulation of debris in the vent pipe itself. Vacuum the floor and wall area(s) around the dryer location before reconnecting the vent and returning it to its location. All of this will ensure that you are getting a proper movement of exhausted air to the outside.

Then at the outside vent, remove the vent cap or cover and take out any accumulation of lint you find there—it may surprise you if you've never done this how much has been captured and how much better your dryer will perform once the free flow of air is restored.

Use Metal Ducting

The slinky-type vinyl ducting commonly used for years no longer meets code requirements because of its susceptibility to combustion. Use only metal vents, solid (best) or accordion-style aluminum, that meet code requirements from your dryer to the outside vent cap.

All Dryers/Gas Dryers

There are internal sections in all dryers only a professional should address that are susceptible to accumulations of debris over time. A professional cleaning by a trained technician every few years is the best way to ensure a dryer's longevity. It's recommended that gas dryers too be cleaned professionally because the gas fittings could be loosened accidentally by an untrained hand moving the unit away from the wall or back to its position.

For more maintenance tips and to see an expanded explanation of these recommendations please visit the Agren website at: www.agrenappliance.com
